

Declawing Facts: WHAT YOU NEED TO KNOW

DECLAWING = Amputation of the end bones in the cat's toes

(imagine having to walk without the first toe bones)

BANNED AND ILLEGAL IN:

37 Countries / 8 U.S. Cities

"Published papers show there is absolutely no correlation between laser declawing and a decrease in the amount of chronic pain and discomfort a cat will experience."

Jackson Galaxy, Cat Behaviorist

"Declawing is so predictably painful that pharmaceuticals use it as a measure to test pain medication."

Jackson Galaxy, Cat Behaviorist

UP TO

Instead, Train Your Cat!

- Use scratching posts and scratch pads. Discover what surfaces your cat likes best. Provide a variety throughout your home. Rub catnip on post and place at base to entice and engage kitty.
- Play with your cat on areas you want them to scratch to encourage their use. Praise with a treat!
- Use sticky tape and/or deterrent sprays to protect surfaces.
- Purchase Feliway pheromone spray to help reduce any stress.
- Keep cat's nails trimmed.
- Soft Paws, a temporary nail cover, is another alternative to explore (as a last resort, because if not applied correctly, infections can occur. We've found simply keeping the nails trimmed has the same benefit as Soft Paws).

For additional training tips...

- Read Jackson Galaxy's tutorial. Search online: "JACKSON CATS AND CLAWS LIVING HAPPILY EVER AFTER."
- Watch the documentary, "The Paw Project" by veterinarian, Dr. Jennifer Conrad, about declawing. The Paw Project can be rented inexpensively online (iTunes, U-verse, Dish, or Amazon). Visit PawProject.org to learn more, and find links to the trailer and documentary.
- Visit PlannedPethood.org for additional links about declawing and ways to train your cat to desired behavior.
