Tilly is one of Allie's former fosters. Although Tilly's future was uncertain, she is now living a happy and healthy life.

Foster Question & Answer

Meet Allie, a foster mom for Planned Pethood's cat program. Allie has been fostering since 2011 and estimates that she has fostered hundreds of animals. In addition to fostering, Allie has a Rottweiler, an English Bulldog, and four cats of her own.

Why did you start fostering?

My mother was a rescue foster when I was a child. I learned at a young age how to bottle feed and how to properly administer medications. She taught me everything about caring for cats and kittens. I started fostering on my own to make a difference in the lives of animals.

What is your favorite thing about fostering?

My favorite thing about fostering is seeing the difference from kittens who are extremely ill when surrendered/found to seeing them happy and healthy.

What is your least favorite thing about fostering?

Sometimes you get particularly attached to certain fosters and it can be hard to let them go. But, you have to remind yourself that every foster who gets adopted, leaves room for another animal to be saved.

Tell us about a memorable foster. The animal can be memorable due to his/her health issues, unique personality, a strong attachment you may have had to him or her, length of stay, or any other reason.

I took in a 4 week old kitten with a completely tilted head. She walked sideways. We weren't sure she would be able to eat on her own or that she would be able to get herself into a litter box. I babied her for the first few days until she made a point to prove to me that she didn't need my help! She ate, she used the litter box and man, did she play. She was such a great example of not letting a disability get you down. With some steroid injections and some physical therapy on her neck, she almost completely straightened out. I loved that girl and I loved watching her improve day by day, but I knew there were others out there that needed me and that is how you let them go. Oh and lucky for me, my friends adopted her & Tilly is a healthy and happy girl who is enjoying life in her forever home.

What kind of advice would you give someone who is on the fence about fostering?

You will never know unless you TRY! You will be surprised how happy it makes you to see your fosters go to a loving forever home. Watching them interact with their new family and feeling confident that they will be happy is a great feeling. Then as we say to our intake coordinators... "I have room for another..."
